

Mr. Black

TAROT CARDS

My Good People,

I am delighted by your visit and trust you had no trouble finding my stately home. Please forgive my absence. While I am away, feel free to explore my residence, filled with mementos of past adventures. This menu is a unique opportunity – a chance to translate the mystique and symbolism of Tarot into taste. Each creation reflects the energy of the cards, allowing you to experience their stories not just in mind, but on the palate. My household staff are ready to guide you through this sensory journey and, should you desire, conjure a bespoke cocktail tailored to your wishes. May your visit awaken curiosity, delight the senses, and reveal hidden layers of this magical place. If my chamber has met your expectations, I would be grateful if you shared your experience via Tripadvisor or Google.

Sincerely yours, Mr. Black

The High Priestess -hidden wisdom in a glass. It symbolizes knowledge that reveals itself slowly, just like this cocktail: light and creamy on the outside, with layers of flavor within. The card unites light and darkness, consciousness and the subconscious. In the drink, contrasts meet: the heavy notes of cacao and banana, the ethereal coconut–pineapple and lime against the sweetness of liqueurs – a harmony of taste reflecting the spiritual balance of the Priestess. A parchment with a prophecy creates a ritual of unveiling secrets. The creamy, fluid texture and tropical “lunar” softness evoke the energy of water and the calm of the moon, guiding you toward intuition and inner knowledge.

the Lovers
VI

The Lovers card is a meeting of opposites that together create harmony.

Mezcal, smoky and earthy, symbolizes fire and passion, while tomato water, light and pure, brings calm – their union gives a sensual balance. Suze and balsamic add notes of desire and alluring depth, just like the dynamics of the Lovers' relationship. The chocolate–chili garnish acts like a kiss: spicy, sweet, and warming, symbolizing desire and physicality. The guest is given a ritual choice – to eat the sphere at the beginning, entering the drink through fire, or at the end as the culmination of the experience. The gently golden-red hue of the cocktail evokes the colors of love, passion, and freshness. It is a cocktail of desire, choices, and the harmony of contrasts – both in taste and in relationships.

Strength – the quiet power within.

The Strength card speaks of inner power born from patience and balance. It is gentle courage and the ability to tame the “lion” within, not with brutality, but with calm. Buckwheat symbolizes foundation and resilience, agave – endurance and the sweetness of reward for patience, pu-erh tea – depth and wisdom that matures over time, and pecan – strength hidden in a delicate core beneath a hard shell. Together they create an image of power rooted in nature and simplicity. True strength does not shout and does not need to prove itself – it is calm, grounded, and soft at heart, yet resolute.

the Hermit

IX

The Hermit – the path to inner truth.
The Hermit symbolizes a solitary journey in search of inner truth and spiritual light. He is a sage walking in silence, carrying a subtle flame of knowledge. Pink ginger brings gentle warmth and cleansing energy, paprika adds fire and trials that temper the spirit, and bergamot offers clarity of mind and freshness of vision. Together, these elements craft a path requiring strength and courage – warming the heart, enduring the flames of experience, and purifying the mind – so that the Hermit's light may truly illuminate the darkness, guiding the seeker toward wisdom.

Wheel of Fortune

The Wheel of Fortune – the cycles of life.

The Wheel of Fortune symbolizes the cyclical nature of life and the constant movement of fate. Nothing lasts forever – challenges and joys rotate like a turning wheel. Basil brings harmony and protection, strawberry adds joy and sweetness, tangerine illuminates with energy and hope for a new beginning, while cranberry reminds us of the tougher lessons that cleanse and strengthen.

Sometimes it is the sweetness of strawberry and tangerine, and other times the tartness of cranberry – yet basil shows that in every change, peace and balance can be found when one trusts the rhythms of life.

the Hanged Man

XII

The Hanged Man – a shift in perspective.
It symbolizes the abandonment of old ways of thinking, the suspension of action, and viewing the world from an entirely new perspective. A toast with butter and jam appears here in a liquid, surprising form, inviting the guest to change their view of everyday life. This cocktail arises from sacrificing simple methods for more complex techniques – vodka infused with burned butter and raspberry foam replace classic ingredients, creating depth and a new quality.

Its harmony unites contrasts – dryness and sweetness, effervescence and velvety smoothness – forming a full balance, just as the Hanged Man hangs suspended between the old world and the new.

Temperance

XIV

Temperance – balance and harmony.
Temperance symbolizes equilibrium, harmony, patience, and the union of opposites. This cocktail combines dry, broth-like vodka with a sweet-and-sour, fruity cordial – opposites that create a harmonious whole. Infusing the vodka and preparing the cordial, then blending them in a shaker, reflects patience and the ability to combine diverse elements into one cohesive creation. Herbs, fruits, and foam create a full synergy of flavors and textures. This is a drink that demands balance and attention to detail, just as Temperance teaches harmony and equilibrium in life.

the Devil

XV

The Devil – passion and temptation.

The Devil symbolizes passion, enslavement, and the play with one's own desires. This cocktail embodies his energy – Gentleman Jack tempts with smoothness while asserting its strength, and Yellow Chartreuse brings an aura of forbidden knowledge and mystery. The honey-pepper cordial combines sweetness with spice, creating a metaphor for pleasure tinged with pain. Salt and water make it deceptively light, almost addictive, while the oolong infusion adds bitterness and earthy depth, echoing the dark consequences of choices. This is a borderline experience – a balance between indulgence and surrender, pleasure and chains, sensuality and darkness, difficult to resist.

the Moon
XVIII

The Moon symbolizes the subconscious, the cycles of nature, and all that is mysterious and elusive. It is connected to night, magic and ritual. The walnut conceals hidden wisdom – its hard shell protects a rich interior that must be reached with patience. Grapes evoke ecstasy, while herbs summon ancient rituals and intuitive practices. Cherry adds passion, representing the hidden side of desire. Together, these elements create an alchemy of night and the subconscious, where the Moon guides through a world of illusions, teaching that truth lies beneath the layers. Sometimes, one must crack the shell, surrender to the vision, trust intuition, and taste the bitter truth to truly know oneself.

Raspberry and blackcurrant bring intense moments of happiness and depth, while the rich aroma of buckwheat honey conveys warmth and a sense of grounded balance. Rosemary adds freshness and a subtle herbal note, reminding us of clarity of mind and thought. Together, these elements create an experience full of vitality, gratitude, and harmony. In the Tarot, the Sun reminds us of the power of positive energy, illuminating the darkness and giving courage to act. It is a card of abundance, warmth, and inner brightness – inviting us to open to life, celebrate its gifts, and find joy in everyday moments.

XXI

The World – completion and unity.

The moment when everything comes together into a harmonious whole, giving meaning to the journey. Melissa brings calm energy, nutmeg, intense and mysterious, adds a note of spiritual depth to this harmony. Lime cleanses and opens the path to a new beginning, while batata provides sustenance and stability, grounding the body. Hazelnut symbolizes wisdom and hidden treasure. The World teaches that fulfillment arises from the unity of opposites. Just as melissa soothes, nutmeg warms, lime purifies, batata nourishes, and hazelnut conceals knowledge, life becomes complete only when you embrace every flavor and color it offers.
